

Dear ICS Parents,

Starting with the new year, we will be tweeting under the username, ICSEagles. We are entering this new arena with cautious enthusiasm. For now, we will tweet no more than once a day. Expect to see announcements and reminders about imminent events as well as the occasional news event of the day. Twitter will augment not replace our other forms of communication acting to reinforce information provided through Moodle, bulk email, email, phone calls, etc.

Our account is unprotected until January 11, 2010. If you want to follow on your computer or on your phone, please search <http://www.twitter.com> for ICSEagles and follow us. Do not expect to see any new tweets during this sign-up period. Our tweets will be protected after 6:00 p.m. on January 11 and available only to those who are approved via an email invitation. Once our account is protected, we will begin posting tweets.

Please be patient with us as we implement this new tool. Let me know if you experience any difficulties finding ICSEagles or following us so that we can assure everyone who wants access has it. As always, please send any feedback to me at twitter@indiancreekschool.com.

Regards,
Elaine Nagey
Director of Policy and Communications
